

Collective for Community, Culture and Environment

dguha@collectiveforcce.com collectiveforcce.com

DEVYANI GUHA
Community Planning and Development

Devyani Guha is an urban planner with over 25 years of experience in comprehensive community-based planning, affordable housing, sustainability, and policy analysis. She has provided technical assistance to numerous large and small local organizations, and worked with governmental agencies and citywide and national organizations. From community engagement and needs assessments through program development and project management with multiple stakeholders, she has assisted clients to articulate and realize their visions, and raise funds through foundations and governmental agencies.

As a member of CCCE, she designed and facilitated community engagement for a rezoning proposal for Bronx Community Board 7 and for UPROSE in Sunset Park, Brooklyn, worked on a Housing Vacancy Study for the Village of Ossining and on the GRID (Green Resilient Industrial District) plan for Sunset Park, Brooklyn. In New Jersey, she worked on the South Orange and Maplewood High School Building Safety and Security Town Hall; helped to vet transit-oriented development projects as a Planning Board member of the Township of South Orange, and helped create a student-centered plan as a Strategic Planning Committee member of the South Orange and Maplewood School District. She has a Master of City and Regional Planning degree from Pratt Institute and a Bachelor of Architecture from Maharaja Sayajirao University, Baroda, India.